

VACANT HOUSING

Vacant Housing Project created by Christina Ross and 10th Grade

CNHS sophomore's first studied housing policy history neighborhood demographics, and ideas for community development.

In art, students created sculptures of Baltimore row houses that reflect Baltimore architectural history, vacant housing, and their idea for their neighborhood. In English, they created group and individual poems about their neighborhoods and our city. As a culminating authentic project students held an exhibition to share their work. They were highlighted on the local news, and families and communities attended.
